Deliwala will have an adverse impact on Bihar, West Bengal polls for NDA

The outcome of the West Bengal Assembly elections on Sunday and the Bihar assembly elections on Thursday do not promise much of a noteworthy electoral outcome for the BJP-led NDA. All the signs point to a probable loss, which will deal a heavy blow to the morale of the NDA. It is a clear indication of the emergence of the waves of the Opposition in these states. This is a sure signal of the political mood of people in these states, as in Shaheen Bagh in New Delhi, where women are marching and demonstrating against the CAA. There is also a common perception that the BJP will emerge as an outsider in these states.

For communal harmony and economic stability, the government must find a way out of this CAI imbroglio immediately and commence a sincere and open dialogue with all the stakeholders, especially the political parties. Prime Minister Narendra Modi and the government have always been committed to the idea of communal harmony and social inclusion. The CAA, however, has led to a situation where the government's efforts have been completely derailed.
