

'Open violent threats...': Ranveer Allahbadia breaks silence amid India's Got Latent controversy

Ranveer Allahbadia, who has been in the news since India's Got Latent controversy occurred, has finally resumed his work. Today (March 30), Ranveer released an official statement and thanked everyone for the supportive messages while he was dealing with the tough phase. He shared a video on his Instagram handle and said, "There's more to say, but not right now. Thank you for your patience."

In his official statement, Ranveer Allahbadia thanked all his supporters, and well-wishers for their positive messages and mentioned how they helped him and his family to deal with the challenging period. He shared, "This phase was very difficult. Open violent threats, so much online hatred, so many media articles, saw so much."

Amid all this, your DMs supported us a lot."

He thanked all the TRS (The Ranveer Show) guests, including actors, cricketers, bureaucrats, and business professionals, for their support. Ranveer added, "Zindagi ke sabse low moments par aapko ye pata chalta hai ki aapke raaste mai sirf safalta nahi chalegi. Aapko failure ka samne karna hoga (In my life's lowest moments, I realized that success never lasts. You will have to face failures too)."

Expressing his emotions, Ranveer elaborated how he has been releasing 2-3 videos every week for the past 10 years without taking a break. He said, "I got a forced break. I learned to live with patience."

Ranveer emphasized how many consider him a family member and promised that he would create content responsibly in the coming

BeerBiceps also requested all the supporters to shower love on him again and said, "Give me one more chance." He mentioned how he loves content creation and it is his passion. Ranveer revealed that when his mental health was affected, meditation, discipline, and prayer helped him, and he eventually realised that only God was with him.

He said, "I'm not seeing this phase as a punishment, but seeing it as a learning and transformation." Ranveer explained he is considering this battle as a lesson and will allow his work to speak. Praising his team, BeerBiceps disclosed that no one from his team had resigned during this tough phase. Speaking about his future work plans, Ranveer said, "Every week, 4 episodes will be released. I love content creation. I have immense love for India's culture."

He requested his fans' support as he embarked on this new phase. Ranveer said, "Abse aapko ek naya Ranveer dikhega, The Ranveer Show par. (From now on, you will see a new Ranveer on The Ranveer Show). The podcast will return very soon."

Sikandar Movie Review: Once more Salman Khan and AR Murugadoss, but this time do better

Sanjay Rajkot (Salman Khan) is the king of Rajkot who carries a special place in every citizen's heart for everything he has done for society. Sanjay is married to Saishree (Rashmika Mandanna) and both of them share a beautiful relationship. However, it's far from perfect because Sanjay doesn't have enough time to spend with his wife.

Meanwhile, Sanjay ends up having a rivalry with a political leader in Mumbai followed by a personal tragedy. His guilt leads him to Mumbai for a noble cause but enmity with politician makes things worse.

What works for Sikandar? Salman Khan is back to treat his fans on Eid with a mass entertainer. Sikandar is a satisfying experience to an extent because of its action. The trailer was average, so if you manage your expectations before visiting cinema halls, you won't mind seeing what's happening on screen (for the first half at least).

Sikandar follows the rules of cocktail to make a typical Salman Khan fan happy. I mean why would someone not like a film showing Bhai serving back to back action while also singing his Being Human glory? Subject looks fine on paper at least. What doesn't work for Sikandar? Sikandar is yet another case of a mass film failing to fulfill its purpose. While the action is the highlight, it still lacks the impact to keep you hooked. The storyline carries potential for emotions but it doesn't work due to half-hearted approach. The dialogues bore you rather than entertaining because the dialogue delivery of actors is as ordinary as writing. Nobody seems interested enough in making a good entertainer.

Music and background score adds to the woes as it never gets you involved. Salman Khan's magnificent charisma is badly missed as he seems far away from his element. He is decent in action but when it comes to emotional scenes or delivering dialogues, he misses the mark.

Zohaib Siddiqui tells why this year's Ramadan was even more special

As the wait for Eid ka Chaand fills the air with excitement, the festive buzz is in full swing! Those who observed Ramadan are busy with last-minute preparations—shopping for new clothes, planning feasts, and making sure everything is perfect for the big day. The joy of Eid is truly unmatched!

Amidst all the celebrations, actor Zohaib Siddiqui, who plays Keshav in Shemaroo Umang's show Main Dil Tum Dhadkan, shares how he spent the holy month of Ramadan and what he's looking forward to the most this Eid.

Reflecting on the festival, he shares: "Eid, for me, is more than just a festival—it's a feeling. A feeling of fulfillment, gratitude, and togetherness. After a month of fasting, prayer, and self-reflection, Eid feels like a well-earned reward—a day filled with love, laughter, and, of course, amazing food!" Zohaib says this year was even more special as I observed Ramadan with my Main Dil Tum Dhadkan family. Every Iftar turned into a warm, heartfelt gathering, with everyone bringing something special to share—it truly felt like a home away from home. Ramadan teaches us discipline, empathy, and inner strength, and Eid is the perfect celebration of everything we've embraced along the way. It's a time to count our blessings, spread kindness, and give back to those in need.

He says further, "I have been keeping roza since I was eight years old, and I still remember the excitement of waiting for Eid. Waking up to the delicious aroma of my mother's sheer khurma, dressing up in new clothes, heading to the mosque with my family, and spending the day celebrating with loved ones—those memories are priceless." Zohaib says even today, that first spoonful of my mom's sheer khurma brings back all the warmth and joy of childhood. This year, I plan to share that joy with my Main Dil Tum Dhadkan family by bringing them a taste of those cherished traditions—a small gesture to celebrate the bonds we've built.

Aishwarya Rai-Abhishek Bachchan take over the internet as they attend her cousin's wedding with daughter Aaradhya

Aishwarya Rai and Abhishek Bachchan are one of the most adored couples in Bollywood. The couple likes to keep their personal life incredibly private, but their public appearances often leave the internet in a frenzy. Most recently, several pictures went viral on the internet as the power couple attended the actress' cousin Shloka Shetty's brother's wedding in Pune, Maharashtra, accompanied by their daughter Aaradhya.

On Sunday, several pictures of Abhishek Bachchan, Aishwarya Rai, and their daughter Aaradhya made waves online as they attended a family function. In one of the pictures, the trio was seen posing with their close family members for an endearing click, in which the celebrity couple was seen standing at the back while their little one was sitting on the floor with other family members.

Keeping it casual, the Be Happy actor was seen in a pink hoodie, while Aish was seen in a black kurta, and Aaradhya opted for a white t-shirt paired with denim pants.

In other pictures, doing the rounds on the internet, the diva was seen posing with the younger generation of her family. In one of the pictures, the actress looked drop-dead gorgeous in a red embroidered traditional ethnic wear.

She opted for red lipstick, a stone bindi, and open wavy curls with a center partition—making for a perfect look for the evening. She also opted for a statement choker made of polka and kundan, along with matching earrings and maang teeka. In another picture, the Ae Dil Hai Mushkil actress was seen delightfully clicking an endearing selfie with her family member. Furthermore, an inside picture from the wedding function taken from afar showed the couple caught in a candid interaction. Aaradhya was seen sitting between the celebrity couple while the actress faced back against the camera.

The doting dad leaned towards his daughter, sitting beside him while the duo looked at the front. The Bachchan family was all smiles. On the professional front, Abhishek Bachchan was last seen in Amazon Prime Video's Be Happy, co-starring Inayat Verma and Nora Fatehi. Directed by Remo D'Souza, the film was based on a father-daughter bond.

Diljit Dosanjh's first film director Guddu Dhanoa hints at rift with singer-actor; refuses to talk about star he launched

Filmmaker Guddu Dhanoa recently shared his thoughts on the evolving nature of young talents who gain stardom. Specifically referring to Diljit Dosanjh, the writer-producer known for titles like Big Brother, Salakheen, and Bicchhoo said it's beyond his comprehension how people change after tasting fame. It was Dhanoa who launched the talent on the big screen via The Lion of Punjab.

In an interview with Friday Talkies, when asked about the singer-actor, Dhanoa redirected the discussion, saying, "Let's talk about positive people, real people, nice people, good people." His response hinted at an underlying tension between him and Dosanjh but left the conversation open to interpretation.

He then shared a broader reflection on how some individuals in the entertainment industry change with success. He recounted a personal experience involving another singer, Sunidhi Chauhan.

According to him, a teenage Chauhan left him impressed with her vocal prowess on the set of Bicchhoo, and when they intersected on location, she touched his feet. "But as time passes, people forget such moments," he added, sharing that his recent attempts to reach out to her had gone unanswered.

"When you are starting out, you will touch the person's feet, hug them, call them godfather, even god, and talk a big game, but later on, everyone changes," added Dhanoa.

Despite his observations on the changing attitudes of stars, Dhanoa was quick to underscore that not everyone in the industry follows the same path. He praised entities like Shah Rukh Khan, Priyanka Chopra, Vidya Balan, Akshay Kumar, and Sunny Deol for staying humble, warm, and genuine despite their distinction.

While The Lion of Punjab (2011) marked Dhanoa's foray into Punjabi cinema and Diljit Dosanjh's debut as a lead actor, the film failed to leave an impact at the box office.

However, its music, particularly Lak 28 Kudi Da, became a sensation. Over the years, Dosanjh has carved a path of his own in showbiz, earning not only national but international recognition.

The Lion of Punjab also starred Pooja Tandon, Gurpreet Ghuggi, and Vindu Dara Singh. It was a remake of the 2003 Tamil film Dhool.

Dhanoa's future endeavors include a web series planned with Anupam Kher and Dimple Kapadia. He also mentioned in his interview that he is working on Deewana 2.

Eshaa Pathak tells what brings authenticity to her character

Bringing a character to life is more than just learning lines—it's about understanding the world they belong to. For actors, keen observation is the key to authenticity, especially when portraying a culture-rich character.

Eshaa Pathak, who plays Gauri in Rishto Se Bandhi Gauri on Sun Neo, believes that studying people is one of the most valuable skills an actor can develop.

Eshaa Pathak says how observing people helps actors, "Observing people gives us a lot of insights. In fact, many shows are shot in real outdoor locations, which is a big advantage for actors. When we visit these places, we get the opportunity to observe the local people—how they speak, their gestures, their common phrases, and even their unique way of expressing emotions. This helps us bring authenticity to our characters and makes it easier to portray the culture that the show is based on." The Rishto Se Bandhi Gauri actress further added, "For me, this process has been even smoother because I belong to Madhya Pradesh. I am already familiar with the local language, traditions, and way of life. Since childhood, I have seen and experienced MP's culture firsthand, so when I play a character that belongs to this region—like in my current show on Sun Neo Rishto Se Bandhi Gauri it feels very natural to me. I instinctively know how to carry myself, speak, and behave in a way that fits the character and setting."

Eshaa Pathak says she has lived in Indore for two years, which has further helped her grasp the local dialect and slang. Being surrounded by the language and culture on a daily basis made it easy for me to absorb the natural flow of conversations, making my portrayal even more realistic and effortless, she adds.

Rishto Se Bandhi Gauri tells the inspiring story of Gauri, a brave and kind-hearted young woman whose unwavering faith empowers her to face life's toughest challenges.

Forced into an unwanted marriage, she enters the Bundela family as a daughter-in-law. However, with her strength and wisdom, Gauri refuses to let fate dictate her future and instead chooses to shape her own destiny. Starring Eshaa Pathak, Savi Thakur, and Swati Shah. This heartfelt drama airs every night at 8:30 PM on Sun Neo.
