

3 Zodiacs Who Steal Your Heart

we want to keep them close."

2. Libra (September 23-October 21)

Where Leo is flashy, attention-grabbing fire, Libra is an air sign. Their presence is akin to a gentle breeze; they have a knack for balance and an elegance about themselves. (Libra's sign, after all, is the scales.) Tsvil says, "They have a natural magnetism people notice right away. They're relationship-focused and genuinely want their partner to feel good, so being with them tends to feel easy—calm, warm and full of good conversation."

Because this sign craves balance and harmony, they value good first impressions and dislike conflict. A Libra is a thoughtful partner, someone who will express genuine interest in you. They're sure to steal your heart if you value a steady, respectful relationship grounded in equality and fairness.

3. Scorpio (October 24-November 22)

Scorpio—a zodiac who steals your heart? At first glance, it's surprising, but not if you think about it. As Tsvil points out, this sign has an intense, magnetic presence that can read a room. "That's why being with them can feel unforgettable. They're detail-oriented and remember the little things you tell them—sometimes better than you do," she notes.

"Once they're in, they're fiercely loyal and protective, especially when they feel deeply connected to you."

Though the Scorpion looks like it'll sting, for the right person, it's a fulfilling match with honesty, depth and true commitment at the core. If you're not deterred by the intensity, it'll be a long-lasting relationship.

1. Leo (July 23-August 22)

This fire sign loves attention—but they also love getting the party started. Tsvil calls the Lion a charmer, someone who's hard to forget.

"Leos are warm, generous and quick to share their light with everyone around them. Around them, you can't help but feel brighter, more inspired and more optimistic," she explains. For this zodiac, there's always an opportunity to turn life into a celebration. Leos are bold and ambitious with contagious energy.

"They're amazing at boosting a partner's confidence with genuine compliments. Leo's love is bold, dramatic and a little magical," Tsvil says. "They make their partner feel like the center of the universe—like royalty. That's why

Apparently, Astrology Says Dressing for Your Venus Sign Makes You Irresistible on a First Date

Astrologically speaking, this is Venus's territory. Venus is the planet in your chart that rules love, beauty, pleasure and attraction—it's the part of you that decides what feels romantic, what you find irresistible and how you naturally draw people in. On your birth chart, that planet is sitting in one of the 12 zodiac signs (Gemini, Virgo, Aquarius, etc.). So while your sun sign might be the 'main character' version of you (say, a rebellious Aquarius), your Venus sign particularly describes your romantic style and love language. That Aquarius might also have their Venus in Capricorn (me), so under all this chaos, I actually crave stability, follow-through and a five-year plan from a partner.

1. Venus in Aries

If your Venus is in Aries, you don't wait for sparks—you strike the match yourself. You're bold, maybe impulsive and deeply unbothered by the "rules" of dating. Your energy feels like a thrill—and that's exactly the tension your style should channel. Lean into heat: exposed skin, undone buttons, hemlines that dare people to look twice—plus anything playful that laces, ties or unzips. If it looks like you threw it on without thinking? Even better. Pair beat-up jeans with an unbuttoned silk shirt and no bra. Let the rest of the look play on the edge: lived-in hair (loose- or air-dried waves), smudged liner and a loud red or hot-pink lip that may or may not stay in place. You're not dressing to seduce—you're dressing to show the rules don't apply to you.

5. Venus in Leo

If your Venus is in Leo, you probably already know: subtlety isn't really your lane. When you walk into a room, it's like someone adjusted the lighting—suddenly, the spotlight's on you. So since first dates feel like opening night, this vibe is all about main-character energy: bold silhouettes, saturated color, plush texture and a little bit of drama at all times. Think a sleek animal-print slip with a faux fur shrug, a plunging neckline balanced by a sharp shoulder or a metallic co-ord with strappy heels. Finish with gold jewelry, a big blowout and a fragrance that leaves a trail behind you. Whether you're in sequins or patent leather black, the effect is the same: you're not someone people look away from.

9. Venus in Sagittarius

Venus in Sagittarius means you're the kind of person who goes on one date...and somehow ends up in a different city, two days later, with a marriage proposal. Your magnetism lives in your appetite for experience—wild, playful, a little irreverent. People don't just like you; they want to keep up with you. Style-wise, that translates to modern boho with a global twist—think updated Stevie Nicks for 2025. Billowy dresses, fringe jackets, slouchy boots and jewelry that looks like it's been collected from markets around the world. Go for fabrics with movement—crochet, suede, burnout velvet—and layer in paisley or Southwestern-inspired prints. The key is to dress like you're down for any adventure... because according to Venus, you are.

2. Venus in Taurus

Venus in Taurus is the definition of slow burn. Your allure isn't loud or flashy—it's rooted in sensuality and the art of taking your time. People are drawn to the way you move, speak and slowly sip your wine. Which is why this look is all about tactile luxury. Reach for chunky knits, indulgent silk dresses, tailored separates and anything in buttery suede, silk or cashmere. Stick with a rich, earthy palette—olive, chocolate, camel, cream—and layer textures like you're building a sensory palette: silk under shearing, denim with leather, cotton against suede. Nothing feels fussy; everything feels intentionally comfortable and expensive. Trends come and go, but this Venus knows: the classics are where the real seduction lives.

6. Venus in Virgo

If your Venus is in Virgo, you're not the loudest one in the room—but you're the one people feel safest with. Attention to detail is part of your charm—like how you fix a collar that's turned up or remember how they order their drink. So of course, your ensemble should be just as considered. Think elevated minimalism with a practical spine: tailored trousers, crisp poplin shirts, slim cardigans and clean layers in oatmeal, sage, navy or cream. Add a structured leather belt, kitten-heel boots and one or two quality accessories—simple gold studs or a watch that actually has the right time. Nothing is messy, but nothing screams for attention. You're going for polished, pared-back and quietly unforgettable.

10. Venus in Capricorn

Venus in Capricorn is all about making restraint feel seductive. You bring structure to the chaos of dating with standards that are high, clear and unapologetic. You know exactly what you want—which only makes people eager to prove they're worthy of your time. So of course, this look leans into that executive seduction: clean lines, sharp tailoring and elevated basics that whisper luxury rather than shout it. Picture high-waisted trousers with a sculpted blazer, a backless knit dress in espresso or a perfectly cut monochrome set in charcoal, cream or slate. Neutrals are your secret weapon, and polish is part of your allure. The vibe is less "dressing to impress" and more "Do you impress me?"

3. Venus in Gemini

When your Venus is in Gemini, conversation is foreplay. You flirt with ideas, hot takes and tangents—and a five-minute coffee date can easily turn into a three-hour spiral. Your energy is quick and curious, and your wardrobe should look like it's in on the joke. Think unexpected pairings that reflect your duality: a sheer blouse with cargo pants, a baby tee under a slouchy blazer, vintage denim with something shiny and ridiculous on top. Mix high with low, classic with ironic. You can also play with textures and switch up accessories like you change topics—a graphic jacket, playful heels, a bag that looks like it has a story. It's about looking like someone who has a thousand tabs open—and somehow, every single one is interesting to click.

7. Venus in Libra

If your Venus is in Libra, congratulations, you basically won the cosmic lottery. Because Libra rules Venus, people are naturally pulled in by your effortless charm—you make even the most mundane moments feel romantic. Which is why your wardrobe should emphasize what you already exude: breezy femininity. Think a bias-cut midi slip with slingback kitten heels, a silk blouse half-tucked into wide-leg trousers with a slim belt or a square-neck dress with sheer tights and a trench shrugged over your shoulders. Opt for soft, fluid fabrics and a romantic palette (blush, ivory, dove gray, butter yellow), plus details that move when you do—draped necklines, flutter sleeves, a scarf tied just-so at your neck or bag handle. The goal is to channel effortless ease—and carry it with you when a 1-hour date turns into 8 hours.

4. Venus in Cancer

People are drawn to those with Venus in Cancer before they even realize why. There's something quietly disarming about you—you make other people feel like they've known you forever. So you're not just dressing for the moment; you're dressing for the memory. It's about softness and nostalgia: vintage-inspired camisoles, dainty linen cardigans and satin skirts that skim the ankle. Colors lean toward shell pinks, antique whites and faded florals, paired with jewelry that looks timeworn—lockets, pearls, imperfect stones. You want pieces that feel heirloom: ruffled blouses, Victorian touches, a slightly oversized jacket that looks borrowed from your grandfather. Your date won't just remember what you wore—they'll remember the feeling that came with it.

8. Venus in Scorpio

If your Venus is in Scorpio, people don't just notice you. They watch you. There's an aura of seduction and mystery that pulls them in—you ooze intensity without saying a word. Picture: Zoë Kravitz walking into a dimly lit bar in a white tank and leather jacket. Or Angelina Jolie in her early-2000s monochrome era. Your style should channel that same tension. Luxe fabrics that beg to be brushed against (silk, velvet, lace, leather). Rich, dark tones, from burgundy to maroon to inky black. Then let one statement piece—a blazer, sexy knee-high boots—do the talking. You're not looking to reveal everything; you want to tease just enough to people guessing.

Weekly Horoscope: Feb 8th to 14th Feb. 2026

This week's astrology brings energy that is both open-hearted and assertive. Honestly, it's the perfect cosmic recipe for naming your desires this Valentine's Day. Love and beauty planet Venus squares off with rebellious Uranus on the 8th, bringing surprising romantic encounters and unexpected treats. Then on the 10th, Venus enters Pisces, a transit that makes us ultra affectionate and perhaps a little delusional about love.

When a friend picks up the tab for lunch on the 8th, you're surprised by their generosity. It's been a long time since you've let yourself receive. Then, on the 10th, Venus moves into Pisces and you enter a season of finding comfort through alone time. Finally on the 13th, Saturn enters Aries, and it's time for you to get serious. A responsibility that you took on back in July reaches its next level.

Romance and creativity are no longer optional for you. If you've been feeling like you need to "earn" love or relaxation, a surprising encounter on the 8th reminds you that joy is nourishing too. Later, on the 10th, your ruling planet Venus moves into Pisces, bringing ease and sweetness to your daily routines. Finally on the 13th, Saturn enters Aries, and you're ready to step into a commitment that you hedged on back in June or July.

A surprise work call on the 8th changes up how you thought this week was going to go. Your ruling planet Venus moves into Pisces on the 10th, bringing joy and ease to your social life and love connections through friends. On the 13th, Saturn enters Aries, a shift that reminds you of a mental breakthrough you had over the summer and haven't thought about since. What do you need to let go of?

Commitments have shaken up your life a lot over the last few years. Whether you moved across the country for your partner or took a job in another country or have become a caretaker for a parent, this week brings another reminder that you're not yet settled down. Luckily, Venus moves into Pisces on the 10th, amping up the romance in your life. Then on the 13th, Saturn moves into Aries, pushing you to take a job or health matter seriously.

There's one final hurdle you need to clear in order to reach a goal, and that hurdle is trusting yourself. A mental breakthrough on the 8th allows you to let go of something that was holding back your expansion. When Venus enters Pisces on the 10th, expect good news at work and a glowing review from your boss. Finally, on the 13th, Saturn enters Aries, a shift that finds you taking on another leadership position.

A shakeup to your schedule on the 8th gives you time to take yourself on a date. Then on the 10th, Venus moves into Pisces bringing ease and sweetness to your home and family life for the next few weeks. When Saturn enters Aries on the 13th, you'll experience a shift that inspires you to get serious about a creative opportunity or take a romance to the next level.

This week, you might need a little help from your friends. On the 8th, you're surprised when a quick ask is all it takes to get what you need. Then on the 10th, Venus enters Pisces and finds you cozied up in geek mode with a good book. Finally on the 13th, Saturn enters Aries, a shift that has you revisiting career goals you put on the back burner in September.

The week begins with you taking yourself or someone else on an expensive date. Or the urge to spend your entire payed-up on a little budgetary relief on the 10th, when Venus enters Pisces and brings ease and sweetness to your schedule, neighborhood and friend group. Finally on the 13th, Saturn enters Aries, and you're faced with a tough decision around home and family life that you thought was put to rest back in July.

The week begins with a shakeup at work that feels unsettling but necessary. Your professional life has been lacking calm and stability for a long time now, but soon, you might miss these surprises. On the 10th, Venus moves into Pisces, and for you, this means support for shared resources and collaborations. Finally on the 13th, Saturn moves into Aries, bringing a serious travel or education opportunity back into the mix.

The urge to cut your own bangs or dye your hair is strong on the 8th. You want to change things up on a foundational level. On the 10th, Venus moves into Pisces, bringing some financial ease and making you less prone to do something drastic. Finally, on the 13th, your ruling planet Saturn enters Aries, initiating a longer period of getting serious about your schedule and routines.

A last-minute work trip brings a surprising burst of fresh air to your routine and gets you out of a rut this week. Then on the 10th, Venus moves into Pisces, a transit that brings devoted partners and compassionate friends to the forefront of your life. After that, on the 13th, Saturn enters Aries, bringing a financial situation from last summer back to your attention. How can you better delegate and share responsibility through a stressful situation?

This week you may find yourself with a lot of extra time that you weren't expecting. Instead of spiraling into existential dread, why not use those free hours to meditate and clear your mind? Then on the 10th, love planet Venus moves into your sign, a great influence for a makeover or style upgrade. Toward the end of the week, Saturn enters Aries, and you make a financial decision that you've been considering since last summer.
